Economic Development and Student Entrepreneurs: A Cross-Cultural Analysis of Attitudinal Differences About Entrepreneurship

Can Uslay

Richard D. Teach

Robert G. Schwartz

Abstract: Attitudes can be quite useful in predicting entrepreneurial tendencies as compared to the use of personal characteristics. It is no surprise that differences in attitudes towards entrepreneurship have been considered a major factor as to why some economies are more entrepreneurial and vibrant than others. The role of entrepreneurship in the continuous growth of economies is not disputed. The present study utilizes a cross-cultural survey of business students' attitudes regarding entrepreneurship and reports on the preliminary results.