Structured Observations of Successful Entrepreneur Business Practices

Eugene E. Payne
Texas State University at San Marcos

James D. Bell
Texas State University at San Marcos

ABSTRACT

This paper is the second phase of a multi-stage study to identify management beliefs and practices, skills, education, and behavior that appear to be associated with enterprise success. The assumptions of this study is that there are common factors of successful entrepreneurs, and that these can be identified by listening to, studying and classifying what entrepreneurs say about their business experiences and personal histories.