Jeff Powell is a grade “A” hacker.

Jeff Powell
Computer Science Graduate Student
Eastern Washington University
Hometown: Anchorage, Alaska

Fortunately, Powell is trained to use his powers for good, not evil. John Shovic, Eastern Washington University professor of cybersecurity, teaches students to think like hackers in order to stop hackers. That’s good news for businesses waging a war on costly network intruders and viruses.

Eastern’s cybersecurity emphasis is part of the new School of Computing and Engineering Sciences. Housed in the new, state-of-the-art, Computing and Engineering Building, the school is designed to meet our state’s need for more science, engineering and technology graduates.

With nearly 60,000 alumni across the state of Washington, Eastern grads are everywhere – and more are coming to fill a technology position near you!

RSVP now for Eastern Edge: Wireless Security featuring Dr. John Shovic, presented by EWU and Bellevue Community College, April 7, in Bellevue. www.ewu.edu/easternedge